Aid Eligibility Comparison Report

THIS REPORT IS essentially the financial GPS for college planning. Specifically addressing the issue of “Sticker Price vs. Out of Pocket Expense”, this report is likely the single most valuable tool we offer in terms of projecting the cost of one year of college.

A secondary benefit to this report is the ability to fairly evaluate your financial aid offer from each school relative to their past response to financial aid for families with your specific Expected Family Contribution.

You will see the projected net expense for each of up to 5 colleges in a head to head comparative report. You will also be able to evaluate graduation rates in four, five, and six year timeframes. Additionally, average athletic and merit based scholarship information for each school is presented.

You will absolutely not want to make a college selection decision nor accept a financial aid award without this report. Savings potential based on the knowledge you’ll get from this one document will arguably be both monetary as well as emotional in that you’ll know your decision is based on financial facts, not supposition.

In addition to Aid Eligibility report, any potential change in your financial situation may be evaluated in the “What If” report in order that you see first hand the impact of the change before it happens.

This ability can save considerable frustration in that no course of action should be taken without a reasonable expectation of positive impact.
